THE GHOST RADIO

Thais are very superstitious, astrology and the supernatural greatly influence the lives of many Thais. Nothing is left to chance such as the first name given to a future child or the date of the wedding or the construction of the house. They also believe in ghosts, and that's why they created Ghost Radio in 2006 until 2010.

Ghost Radio, a popular show broadcast over the internet from a studio on the top floor of a half-abandoned shopping mall in Bangkok. Thais in the tens of thousands tune in to watch or listen live to listeners recounting their experiences with ghosts, spirits and other beings from the afterlife.

Today, these old stories reported by the victims are unearthed by TikTok or YouTube and other platforms.

Thanks to new technologies, "the chance of seeing ghosts increases", explained Watcharapol Fukjaidee to AFP which is Agence France-Presse.

"Ghosts communicate through apps, messaging, phone calls. Technology becomes the channel through which they can contact people," says Watcharapol, 46 years old who cultivates a low-key, tongue-in-cheek style.
